

RESILIENCY

Resiliency In The Moment: The Gift of Forgiveness

“Forgiveness is a gift you give yourself.”

- Suzanne Somers

Have you accumulated resentments this past year? Let go through forgiveness.

1. Recognize the humanity of the person who betrayed you and that they have flaws.
2. Consider where the person who betrayed you has room to grow.
3. Genuinely wish the person well, even if it's only in your mind.

Forgiveness is a moral response to a relational injustice. Many times it is about extending compassion even if the person doesn't "deserve" it. The decision to forgive is only the first step. The process of forgiveness takes time. Don't force or feel obligated to forgive unless you wish to do so.

Need more help? EAP – (314) 747-7490 24-hour, virtual hotline available
Visit the BJC COVID-19 site for additional Wellness Resources – covid19.bjc.org